

YOUR PARTICIPATION SUPPORTS CHARITIES IN THE BLEEDING DISORDER COMMUNITY

This is very special to my heart because I live every day with Hemophilia A. My blood is deficient in Factor VIII so it does not clot properly and I have to infuse medicine to bring my clotting levels up to normal. Many children and adults in this community need help paying for their medical bills and attending summer camps and educational programs. I have a personal connection to these charities as the Hemophilia Foundation of Southern California is my family's home chapter, and I run a national golf tournament and contribute to golf programs for adults with bleeding disorders for the Wingmen Foundation.

The Hemophilia Foundation of Southern California (HFSC) has worked to improve and enrich the lives of bleeding disorders community members for over 60 years. They serve Los Angeles, Orange, Kern, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Riverside, Inyo and Ventura Counties. There are an estimated 2,500 individuals with bleeding disorders in Southern California. Currently, HFSC offers assistance in many areas such as medical alert sponsorship, emergency financial assistance, family gatherings and retreats, educational programs, scholarships, and advocacy, in addition to youth focused programs like summer camp and teen leadership training.

Wingmen Foundation augments the support of national organizations by providing additional services and financial assistance to those living with chronic conditions. Individuals, families, and groups become more empowered through the fitness, activities, advocacy, education, and financial assistance they offer. One of many chronic conditions that Wingmen Foundation is focused in supporting is Hemophilia.
